“AK Public Health Alert Network: Outbreak of Life-threatening Coagulopathy Associated with Synthetic Cannabinoids Use. Note: The Alaska Section of Epidemiology is distributing this message for informational purposes; to date, no [blood clotting problems] associated with synthetic cannabinoid use have been reported [in Alaska]. General Background

Synthetic cannabinoids are not one drug. Hundreds of different synthetic cannabinoid chemicals are manufactured and sold

(1). New ones with unknown health risks become available each year. These chemicals are called cannabinoids because they act on the same brain cell receptors THC...in marijuana; however, synthetic cannabinoids may affect the brain in different and unpredictable ways

(2). Synthetic cannabinoids are... sprayed onto plant material and then smoked; used in ... e-cigarettes; or ingested when added to herbal tea or food.

Synthetic cannabinoids are widely available. Consumers can buy [them] in convenience stores, from individual drug dealers, friends, or online as incense or natural herbal products.

They are sold under many different...names, but ... commonly ... as synthetic marijuana, fake weed, legal weed, K2, and Spice.

Adverse effects ... vary and can include ...agitation, confusion...hallucinations, delusions, [nose- & gum-bleeds, bruising, heavy bleeding, vomiting or coughing up blood, blood in urine, side and belly pain, and other ...signs and symptoms...

Outbreak Background

In March 2018, the Illinois Department of Public Health reported cases of unexplained bleeding among patients who reported using synthetic cannabinoids. Subsequent testing of drug and biological samples from case-patients detected the presence of brodifacoum, a long-acting vitamin K-dependent antagonist that is used as a rodenticide.

... Since the [first] case was identified in Illinois ... state health departments have reported 202 cases, including 5 deaths... in nine states

... More than 95 of case-patient biological samples have tested positive for brodifacoum...

Recommendations for the Public

1. CDC recommends that people do not use synthetic cannabinoids.

Synthetic cannabinoids are always dangerous because it is impossible for people to know what chemicals are in the product, how much they are being

- exposed to, and how their body will react to the chemicals. The synthetic cannabinoid products associated with this outbreak are especially dangerous because they contain brodifacoum, a chemical used as rat poison that can cause uncontrolled bleeding.
2. People who have used synthetic cannabinoids in the past three months and are concerned about their health should contact their healthcare provider. Synthetic cannabinoids users who develop any unusual bruising or bleeding should seek medical attention immediately.
