from Veterans For Peace (VFP): "9-26-18:

Juneau, AK – VFP Chapter 100 Taps Skagway Activist to Plan Youth Nuclear Weapons Conference - Shelby Surdyk of Skagway Alaska has been selected to plan and coordinate an International Youth Congress for the Global Elimination of Nuclear Weapons which will be held in Juneau in 2020.

"Being involved with the Youth Congress would be a dream come true for me" Surdyk wrote when she learned about this project. "I want to build opportunities for Alaskan students to grapple with the grave and important topics of nuclear weapons proliferation..."

"During her undergraduate work at the University of Alaska Fairbanks, Surdyk volunteered in UAF's gamma-ray spectroscopy lab where she prepped marine mammal tissue samples collected by Alaskan subsistence hunters who were concerned about possible radionuclide contamination following the meltdown of the nuclear plant in Fukushima, Japan. For her senior thesis, she led a community-based radiation monitoring project in her hometown of Skagway.

"The Youth Congress is co-sponsored by the University of Alaska Southeast and the Juneau People for Peace and Justice. The conceptual idea was developed by former Juneau Mayor Bruce Botelho. It will be funded, in part, by a grant from the Ploughshares Fund, which has supported such projects for more than 35 yrs..."

"On Oct 14, Surdyk will be in Juneau for the official project launch with the screening of the documentary film "The Man Who Saved the World" at the University of Alaska Southeast Egan Lecture Hall at 4 pm. Starring Robert De Niro, Matt Damon and Kevin Costner, it "tells the gripping true story of Stanislav Petrov - a man who single-handedly averted a fullscale Nuclear World War" by preventing a Soviet Union nuclear weapons retaliatory response to a false alarm..."

FCAC Regenerative Economy Working Group: "If our current economy is producing climate change, pollution, and inequality, what kind of economy can provide good livelihoods that work both for people and the planet? This working group is focused on finding answers to that question that make sense for Alaska—we seek to redefine the goals of the economy away from maximizing income for the wealthy few towards achieving broad-based equity, community health, and ecological sustainability.

"We have a tremendous opportunity now to build a new and regenerative economy in Alaska. While our dependence on the fossil fuel industry has enriched Outside CEOs and provided some jobs and financial resources for our state, it has also polluted our lands and contributed to hazardous global warming. With declining petroleum production and an oil price bust, it's clear that we need to transition. Alaskans have the choice now to instead build an economy that is based on regeneration — both of renewable resources and of healthy communities and good livelihoods for workers. Our working group is building a vision and plan toward a regenerative economy and we are elevating Alaskan voices calling for this vision.

Upon the conclusion of their meeting, the delegations of the three organizations issued the following statement:

"The participants express grave concern that the accelerated drive to militarization, aggression and war threatens the very future of humanity, and call for urgent measures to stop and reverse the arms race, to sharply reduce bloated military budgets and to redirect these funds to peaceful and socially useful purposes to raise wages and living standards, improve social programs and protect our environment.
