This week we skip some other news to bring recordings and commentary carrying forward the messages of Martin Luther King, Jr, in whose honor Monday will be a holiday.

Hello, this is Rob Mulford with the Asymmetric Moose picks for the week of January 20, 2019.

Dorothy Day, the altruistic, journalist, activist, anarchist, cofounder of the Catholic Worker, paper and movement once said, “The greatest challenge of the day is: how to bring about a revolution of the heart, a revolution which has to start with each one of us.”

I heartily agree. But how do we begin to address this challenge.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. believed Poverty, Racism, and War to be the three greatest evils of society. Convinced that if we were to get on the right side of the world revolution, we as a nation must undergo a radical revolution of values, and that that would require divestment from the industries of death and major increases in investment of social uplift. F-35s anyone.

This past Tuesday was Reverend King’s Birthday. This Monday, the 21st of January, is our national holiday celebrating the man and his vision. I have dedicated this portion of today’s show to his honor. The following recording is excerpted from his sermon, Beyond Vietnam, delivered on April 4, 1967 at the Riverside Church in Upper Manhattan, New York. If you haven’t heard it before, please pay close attention to what this great visionary had to say some 52 years ago. If you have heard it please give it a listen again. Closely consider it, and then decide for yourself, “To what extent does this powerful soul’s message speak to our community.” Oh yea, for an encore, I have added a snippet of a talk that the Reverend gave to a group of activists standing vigil for incarcerated anti-war activists including Joan Baez. It’s on the little matter of decision.
