Against the War!

About Face Veterans Against the War's secure form that members of the military can use to report concerning incidents or conditions, as well as request peer or legal support to explore their options in the event they have concerns about the moral, ethical, and/or legal implications of their situation.

Please forward this secure form to military members." from Veterans For Peace.

per winwithoutwar: "the newly elected House has more progressive anti-war lawmakers than ever before — with new members Mondaire Jones, Jamaal Bowman, and Cori Bush joining champions like Barbara Lee, Ro Khanna, Jim McGovern, and every member of "The Squad" in 2021.

"This means we'll have a once in a lifetime opportunity to push for a bold, transformative foreign policy agenda. And to do that, we're organizing NOW so we're ready to put the anti-war movement out front across ALL our issues — from ENDING U.S. complicity for human rights abuses in Yemen to REPEALING the 2001 and 2002 Authorizations for Use of Military Force that allow for endless war...

"Combined with Biden-Harris administration pledges to re-enter the Paris Climate Agreement, re-join the Iran nuclear deal, to extend the New START treaty, and to prioritize tackling the existential threats we face — we will have a HUGE opportunity to turn the United States fundamentally away from endless war, astronomical defense spending, and rampant militarism...."

=The courts have refused to stop the count or show interest in throwing out ballots...

=Recounts are normal...

=State legislatures have made no moves to send alternate slates of electors. ..

Because institutions keep doing the right thing — and Trump has shown no ability to stop them — we do not believe what we are seeing right now is a coup.

We do see signs that suggest violence might escalate in the streets. Here are four quick tips if you're going into the street:

Don't stay out late. ..

We think there's a lot to be proud of in this moment—our democratic institutions have passed an important test. Over the coming days and weeks we will keep monitoring to make sure they do not backslide.

We will let you know right away if and when it happens with info on what you can do. Sign Up."

Audio & Songs broadcast with this week's Community News:

" Hello this is Rob Mulford, the Asymmetric Moose, with picks for the week of November 8, 2020:

This Wednesday the 11th of Novembber is Armistice Day, a day set aside for the celebration of world peace. It signifies the relief and joy felt around the world when the armistice was signed on the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month of 1918. Bells were rung throughout the world to celebrate peace and the end of four years of World War I that killed or wounded more than 30 million people. In the wake of so much carnage, it was then clear to millions of people that wars were not about valor or romantic ideals, but about empire, which benefits a few at the expense of many. In 1954 President Eisenhower changed Armistice Day to Veterans Day by presidential proclamation, admonishing us to “reconsecrate ourselves to the task of promoting an enduring peace so that their efforts shall not have been in vain.” However, in contrast to Eisenhower's intention, rebranding Armistice Day as Veterans Day has led to a change from celebrating peace to celebrating the military and glorifying war. Armistice Day has been flipped from a day for peace into a day for displays of militarism.

The Alaska Peace Center, along with Veterans For Peace nationally and locally, celebrates the original intent of November 11th – as a day for peace. Peace, not war, is the best way to honor the sacrifices of veterans. We want generations after us to never know the destruction war has wrought on people and the earth. Please join us this Wednesday at Veterans Memorial Park down town Fairbanks, at 11 AM as we celebrate peace and call out, once again, for the abolishment of war.

During the past six years I have been engaging myself in a literary struggle of sorts; trying to chronicle, the experience of a very special group of workers of whom, forty years ago, I had the honor of sharing a very difficult work environment, some 7,500 feet into the bowels of Huntsman Ridge, Colorado. The mines in which we worked contained the highest quality coking coal west of the Missouri River. For the most part, we only had two customers; both being “war baby” steel mills, constructed by the Federal Government, to supply the steel needed in the construction of the United States’ Fleet of Battle Ships in the Pacific. One of these, the Geneva Works in Provo, Utah, was “purchased” from the government at the close of WWII for thirty cents on the dollar. In the process of telling the story I have come to recognize, permeating those seams of coal, some of the insanities of war making, a realization that a friend and fellow miner recalled saying, “Rob, working down there, did you ever notice how the demons were so thick you could cut them with a knife.” Similar to the way the hijacking of Armistice Day by Veterans Day, replaced the celebration of peace with the glorification of militarism and the making war – including its consequent tragedies of lost and broken lives – they told us we were the world greatest coal miners while simultaneously encouraging us to engage in insane rates of production that prevented the exercise of those safety measures legislated to protect our lives. The ways of war run deep into our culture and economy. May we find the strength and courage to retire them to their proper place, the historical rendering which warns us to never repeat those errors.

My first selection is excerpted from a 1945 newsreel concerning the WWII steel mills of Youngstown, Ohio, the commentator’s remarks at the end are particularly perceptive. It’s a shame they were not incorporated into our country’s worldview following the war. If only we could learn to live together.
